

Heba is a passionate architect specialized in sustainability and green buildings. She is a current architect in Inside out design office in Amman and a previous lecturer in Middle East University.

Heba's approach to design and sustainability are rooted in research and creativity. Throughout her international experience she has gained several awards nationally and internationally; The Walter Netch award for distinctive Merit in Chicago, the 'Price and Myres' award for the best Environmental designer Nottingham, the first place in the National Final of the Multi Comfort House Contest in London, as well as the Special Jury prize in the international Final Stage of ISOVER in Bucharest, Romania.

Heba completed her Masters in Environmental design at the University of Nottingham with distinction, a Post graduate degree in Design concept from The school of Art Institute of Chicago for, and her Bachelor degree from the University of Jordan.